This course's progression was really well done. From introducing us to how layering works all the way to making/modifying our own layers. I feel very confident I know how to at the very least fix a few issues that someone on the baseport team would need to fix

They did a great job at giving a fast overview of what the outcome should look like and to defuse some of the more technical points that could send us off track for house

The practical demos again did a great job to give us the confidence on what we should be seeing if we did everything correctly

The demos did not work right on my machine and it was hard to catch up since it did not seem like the lab docs were updated.

It was layed out perfectly for someone coming in with no knowledge of what yocto is and how it works internally

This did an excellent job at explaining the beginning steps of working with yocto. It's a shame we couldn't go more in depth but now (thanks to this class) I understand why.

What part(s) of the course did you like most?

2 responses

Teh course was divided pretty evenly through the days and it did not feel cumbersome on any one day.

I liked the labs. Being able to practice, make mistakes, and google around for the answer really did help me learn and keep the information

What part(s) of the course did you like least?

The course being online but I understand why a Yocto training can not be offline. It takes too much time
